FUND'S PERFORMANCE COMPARED TO BENCHMARK

FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

The local main index closed 2.7% higher at 1,740 points vs Asia ex-Japan 2.8%. The broader market outperformed posting a larger gain of 3.4% while the small-caps increased 8.4%.

Despite weaker commodity prices, Malaysian equities continued its climb in March as it was a beneficiary of broader foreign portfolio inflows into Asia. Net foreign buying into Malaysia for the month accelerated to USD984 million, the highest since March 2016. For the month, Brent crude oil futures fell 5.0% to USD53 per barrel while spot crude palm oil extended its February fall, slipping 3.1% to end at RM2,855 per ton.

In terms of investment strategy, we are looking to invest in stocks with themes, along with cautiously positive mid-term outlook.

Based on the Fund's portfolio returns for the period ended 31 December 2016, the Volatility Factor (VF) for this Fund is 11.8 and is classified as "Very High" (source: Lipper). "Very High" includes funds with VF that are more than 10.605 (source: Lipper). The VF means there is a possibility for the Fund in generating an upside return or downside return around this VF. The Volatility Class (VC) is assigned by Lipper based on quintile ranks of VF for qualified funds. VF is subject to monthly revision and VC will be revised every six months. The Fund's portfolio may have changed since this date and there is no guarantee that the Fund will continue to have the same VF or VC in the future. Presently, only funds launched in the market for at least 36 months will display the VF and its VC.
