FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

The US economy maintained a moderate growth trajectory in June, supported by resilient labour market despite persistent inflationary pressures. Headline Consumer Price Index ("CPI") accelerated to 4.2% Year-on-Year (YoY) in May (Apr: 3.8% YoY), while the Federal Reserve's ("Fed") preferred Personal Consumption Expenditure ("PCE") price index rose to 4.1% YoY (Apr: 3.8% YoY), marking its highest level since April 2023. Labour market remained healthy as the unemployment rate held at 4.3% while employers added 172,000 non-farm jobs in May. The combination of persistent inflation and resilient labour market reinforced expectations of a higher-for-longer interest rate environment. Reflecting this, the Fed maintained its policy rate at 3.50%-3.75% while retaining a hawkish stance, with markets continuing to price in the possibility of an additional rate hike in 2026. US Treasury yields remained elevated at end-June, with the 10-year and 30-year yields closing at 4.47% and 4.95% respectively, reflecting expectations of sustained restrictive monetary policy.

Malaysia's economy remained broadly stable in June, supported by steady domestic demand and accommodative policy stance. Headline inflation rose marginally to 2.0% YoY in May (Apr: 1.9% YoY), largely driven by higher food and utilities prices. Although the labour market softened slightly, with the unemployment rate rising to 3.0% in April from 2.9% over the preceding five months, manufacturing activity improved as the S&P Global Manufacturing Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) rebounded to 50.7 in June (May: 49.9), signalling a return to expansion and improving business conditions. Bank Negara Malaysia ("BNM") maintained the Overnight Policy Rate ("OPR") unchanged at 2.75%, signalling manageable inflation and supportive domestic growth.
