FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

Equities had a mixed month of March, with Developed Markets down while Emerging Markets were up. The 10-year US treasury yield is unchanged at 4.21%. The US Dollar Index decreased, dropping 3.2% MoM to close at 104.2 points.

The FBM KLCI shed 3.9% MoM to close at 1,513.7 points in March caused by uncertainties surrounding US tariffs. The best performing sectors for the month were energy and utilities, with both sectors having generated a positive return. Laggard sectors were telecom, finance, and healthcare. Foreign investors were net sellers for the month at RM4.6 billion.

Global trade tensions, policy unpredictability under a Trump administration in the US, and signs of a US-led global economic slowdown continue to weigh on market sentiment. Despite these external headwinds, Malaysian equities remain supported by undemanding valuations and resilient domestic flows. We maintain a 75–80% equity exposure in the near term, adopting a nimble stock-picking strategy focused on large-cap value and defensive names. While near-term volatility is expected, we see selective opportunities and continue to position for resilience through quality exposure.
