FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

The FBM KLCI advanced 2.3% in September to close at 1,612, supported by the U.S. Federal Reserve's rate cut and optimism ahead of Budget 2026. The broader FBM Emas Index rose 2.4%, while the FBM Small Cap Index surged 5.8%, outperforming larger caps. Foreign investors turned net buyers (+RM76m) for the first time in three months, reversing August's heavy outflows. Domestic institutions added RM380m, while retail investors trimmed exposure.

Market sentiment improved as the Fed began a new easing cycle with a 25bps rate cut—the first since December 2024—fueling expectations for stronger regional fund inflows. Locally, a 6-sen reduction in RON95 fuel prices and anticipation of an expansionary Budget 2026 boosted confidence. Bank Negara Malaysia maintained the OPR at 2.75%, citing resilient domestic demand. Sector-wise, utilities, industrials, and consumer led gains (+5–6%), while healthcare, construction, and financials were laggards.

Brent crude declined 1.6% to $67.0/barrel, CPO eased 0.1% to RM4,305/tonne, and the Ringgit strengthened 0.4% to 4.21/USD.

We remain cautiously optimistic as Malaysia enters the final quarter with improving macro stability and supportive policy momentum. Budget 2026 is expected to align with the first year of the RM430b 13th Malaysia Plan (13MP), emphasizing infrastructure, energy transition, and industrial capacity. With the FBM KLCI trading at ~15.3x PER—below its 10-year average—we maintain a barbell strategy, balancing domestic recovery sectors (consumer, construction, utilities) with structural growth themes (AI, semiconductors, and data centers) to capture both cyclical and long-term opportunities.
